STRANGER than fiction are some of the modern Creations in horticulture. The Black Tulip once caused a political upheaval in Holland, the seedless orange changed the fruit industry of California and now the Oriental Poppy promises to change the complexion of our gardens.

It is being made to reproduce itself in heretofore unknown colors. No longer must we content ourselves with the old fashioned orange red poppies of our grandmother's garden. These aristocrats of the flower world may now be had in "Old Rose Pink", "Lilac-rose", "Golden Orange", "Coral Pink", "Carmine", "Flame Scarlet", "Shrimp Pink", "Cerise" and in fact many other shades which harmonize beautifully with other spring flowers.

The color descriptions marked * are taken from "Color Standards and Nomenclature" by Ridgway, and are checked repeatedly for accuracy. The numeral following the name indicates the usual height when in bloom.

WHEN TO PLANT ORIENTAL POPPIES--JULY and AUGUST. The balance of the year, even through the winter months, they are in an active growing condition. The dormant season, unlike most other plants, is midsummer and if moved then good results are sure to be secured. Of course, the clumps increase in size with age and may be left in the same spot for many years.

SIEBENTHALER POPPIES are strong, field grown plants, ready for planting directly in their permanent place in the garden or perennial border.

The following alphabetical list contains not only the latest introductions of the leading plant breeders of this country and Europe but many originated by us and offered here for the first time.

Mrs. Frank Acton; Elkins Park, Pa.

"Last August I ordered a selection of varieties of your field-grown Oriental Poppies. One of these by the name of WELCOME I prize very highly, due to its decorative character. This one plant produced in May four very outstanding blooms of very fine quality. The petals are true to color, with firm, long straight stems. And when we had the Country Club Amateur Garden Show in May of this year, this one flower was selected for the Blue Ribbon prize, as being the outstanding flower in this class exhibited at the show.

"I am sure that only such marvelous results can be produced from good, high class field-grown stock and not from the so called pot-grown quality."

C. M. Moore, Division Manager

S OIL CONDITIONS FOR ORIENTAL POPPIES--They will thrive and prosper in any good garden soil, whether it be sandy, clay, loam, or even heavy clay. However, they dislike having water stand over them for any prolonged period, or even where the water level is as close as six inches from the surface of the ground. They do not seem to be particular as to lime or acid soils, nor should they have any strong fertilizer in any form. Leaf mold seems to be their favorite source of food.

ARRANGEMENT OF POPPIES IN THE GARDEN--Oriental poppies have long suffered the reputation of not harmonizing with other garden flowers. This idea is the fruit of ignorance, for there are a great many varieties of poppies which will go well with any other respectable garden flowers. One of the prettiest garden combinations conceivable is a soft pink poppy such as Watteau or Pink Beauty in combination with Belladonna Delphinium and Madonna Lilies. Another good combination is the variety Welcome used with Regal Lilies with a good variety of Mock Orange as a background. Of course, the promiscuous use of the old-fashioned seedling oriental poppies does create a clash of colors in the garden, but a little forethought in the proper selection of named varieties will avoid any such criticism. The deep red oriental poppies always make a splendid appearance where they can have a background of dark green evergreens or white blooming shrubs such as Syringas.

CARE OF ORIENTAL POPPIES--Oriental Poppies need very little special care, as they are not ordinarily susceptible to disease or insect pests. About the only care which is necessary is the usual cultivation and weed control, and when new plants are entering their first winter it is well to mulch the surface of the ground under the leaves of the plant with a light layer of excelsior or straw. Newly planted poppies require moderate watering if a dry season should prevail following their planting.

S EQUENCE OF BLOOM--Recent developments in the varieties of oriental poppies have extended the period of bloom a great deal. With the proper selection of varieties we can now extend the poppy season over a period of nearly six weeks, beginning the 15th of May and ending the first of July. The earliest variety to bloom is the double, orange colored Olympia. This is soon followed by May Queen and Harmony. Other very early varieties coming before the first of June are Henri Cayeux, King George, and Beauty of Livermere. The first half of June brings Lula A. Neeley, Purity, Enfield Beauty, Cerise Beauty, Julia Buck, and Mahony into bloom. These are followed by Lightness, Salmon King, Gaiety, Joyce, and then come Perfection, Perry's White, Wunderkind, Mandarin, and Trilby. The season is usually ended with the last flowers of Mrs. Stobart, Loreley, Colonel Bowles, and Echo.

ORIENTAL POPPIES IN BOUQUETS--When properly prepared, poppies will maintain their freshness and last as long as many other varieties of garden flowers. The newly opened flowers or buds which have burst and are showing color are the ones to cut. Then burn the cut ends of the stems over a blaze until they have charred to a length of one to two inches. Immerse the stems in cold, deep water and place in a cool, shaded location for a couple of hours, after which time they may be arranged in suitable bouquets and by adding fresh, cool water twice a day they will give surprising results.
